

For IOLTA Programs and Other Funders...

Strengthen Your Grant Application and Review Process

An efficient grant application and review process – aligned with a funder’s principles, standards, and priorities – is a strong indicator of a great funding program.

The Resource has developed a streamlined, proven approach that will help you, as a funder, gather meaningful information from applicants about their effectiveness in engaging and serving low-income populations and adherence to high quality standards for delivering legal aid.

Our grant application and review process will ensure that you are better positioned to make informed decisions and have immediate access to the data you need in order to tell a powerful story about how your funding program is improving peoples’ lives.

We can work with you to...

Refine the current grant application so you get the information you need.

Develop a framework that will facilitate data compilation and analysis.

Design a grant application evaluation instrument that provides a snapshot view of application information for you and your board of directors.

We can provide...

Forms Development – Targeted questions that gather powerful information.

Application Submission Processing – Effective tracking tools, application screening, and grantee follow-up.

Grant Application Evaluation – Objective findings that result in more informed award decisions by funders and their boards

We get results and provide efficiencies...

With a grant application that is streamlined and focused on meeting your needs.

Through an application screening process that ensures consistency in reporting.

With a database that helps you spot trends and make comparisons over multiple years.

By using an evaluation instrument that captures key information in a presentation format that is clear and concise.
